The Commission and staff shall also be conducting activities that are involved with the efforts of the Rural Transportation Planning Organization and West Piedmont Economic Development District. In January 2009, the PDC became a Local Development District in conjunction with the Appalachian Regional Commission; and, as such, the PDC is responsible for the management and administration of the District Program on behalf of the City of Martinsville and Counties of Henry and Patrick. Also included in this program category are development of an annual work program and budget consistent with the goals of the Commission; facilitating coordination and cooperation among the local, state, and federal governments; supporting the local jurisdictions through local planning and technical assistance; developing a regional assessment and awareness of the overall condition of the District's socio-economic, physical, and fiscal condition through the identification of key issues and promulgating an appropriate program of action; maintaining good communication through the liaison/technical assistance program and the public information program.

OBJECTIVE: To provide the West Piedmont Planning District with an annual CEDS, supported by appropriate planning and studies.

DESCRIPTION: The staff will, in its capacity as the region's Economic Development District, develop the Annual Update to the Comprehensive Economic Development Strategy (CEDS) document with input from local governments to maintain the EDD status of the region. In 2010-2011, staff worked with localities to establish a Comprehensive Economic Development Strategy Committee, or CEDS Committee, to meet the requirements of the Economic Development Administration. During 2012-2013, a CEDS Working Committee, a subset of the full CEDS Committee, was established to preview various chapters and provide suggested revisions in review of the document. Both committees have private sector representation. The staff will continue to provide guidance to local governments in developing a list of prioritized projects for inclusion in the Regional CEDS document which will be reviewed by the CEDS Strategy Committee. As the committees' roles evolve in the CEDS process, the Commission staff will obtain guidance and input from EDA's Philadelphia Regional Office. In addition, the staff will also supply the Philadelphia Regional Office timely information on prospective and actual plant closures and the anticipated number of employees affected.

The West Piedmont Economic Development District has established a process for annual updates to its CEDS document which will continue to receive input from a wide variety of sources including a public review component. Utilizing the CEDS Committee and the Working Committee, the Regional Economic Development Planner will circulate drafts of various components of the CEDS as developed for review and comment. Committee members may then obtain input from other individuals or agencies with regard to sections pertaining to their respective jurisdiction or the region as a whole. The planning process is ongoing, with development of document updates beginning as soon as CEDS submission to the Economic Development Administration occurs each year. As in the past, staff will then begin to work with localities on development of prioritized projects for inclusion in the document in the fall of each year, with the localities being given two to three months for development, review, and local governing body approval of the upcoming year's prioritized project list. After all localities have submitted their project lists and the CEDS Strategy Committee/Working Committee have reviewed the various CEDS document components, the staff will place the draft document on the Commission website to solicit public comment and input.

Demographics included in the CEDS document will be updated on an ongoing basis as new information becomes available from a variety of agencies including the Census Bureau, the Weldon Cooper Center for Public Service at the University of Virginia, the Virginia Employment Commission, and numerous other state and federal agencies. As with recent document development, staff will incorporate new demographics from the American Community Survey as well as decennial Census data.

Following approval, the document will be submitted to the Philadelphia offices of the Economic Development Administration for approval. Copies will be printed for distribution following the approval of the CEDS Strategy Committee and the WPPD Board of Commissioners. Many agencies and organizations, representing the interests of women, minorities, disabled, and aged citizens across the region utilize demographics and other information within the report for development of grant applications and reports for the benefit of the region. Staff can also make digital versions of the report available in addition to printed copies. The EDD's website includes a link to the CEDS.

Ultimately, the goal is to develop a Comprehensive Economic Development Strategy that will bring together public and private sector representatives in the creation of an economic roadmap to diversify and strengthen our region's economy.
